Academic Programs

English-based program

The English-taught programs combine contemporary Chinese business, Chinese culture, and Asian values with Western management science and practice. At the same time, Chinese language forms a part of the curriculum, so that students can better prepare and understand Chinese culture and Chinese economy, so as to gain an advantage in securing for internship and employment opportunities locally or abroad.

Chinese-based program

Classes in this program are taught in Chinese. This program is uniquely designed to provide high-level business theory teaching for overseas business students to develop a fuller appreciation of the practicalities of doing business in and with China. The program mixes teaching and coursework which is supported by company visits and gives students the opportunity to gather first-hand business knowledge from managers and experts. At the same time, students can have the opportunity to exchange study abroad and China tour which enable students to gain an understanding of the Chinese economic, political and social environment.
